Or

Or

The mission of the FRRS is to protect and share the history, equipment and personal stories of the Western Pacific railroads. (EV2)

Perhaps we should also consider a Vision Statement to accompany the Mission Statement:

Vision Statement

The Western Pacific Railroad was ~~more a family than~~ a business, with a forward thinking attitude that shaped innovation in the industry and whose influence is still seen today although she no longer exists as a corporate entity. Our organization is singularly committed to our goals: educating current and future generations of this rich railroad history through the development of a world class museum, through the preservation of a uniquely focused historical collection of artifacts at that facility, and by fostering relationships that will allow us to take this educational dream to far-reaching outside venues.
